ANNUAL REPORT
2014

Introduction

This report will highlight the significant achievements and activities of our Department during the 2014 calendar year. Some reports will reference the academic year (2014-2015) because of its relevance to the McGill teaching schedule. We are pleased to report that our department continues to achieve excellent academic productivity with respect to publications and grants. Clinical activities and teaching were conducted at each of the major

2. Teaching and learning (undergraduate and graduate)

Undergraduate (Committee co-chairs: Dr. Lily Nguyen and Dr. Marc Tewfik)

The Department hosted the Canadian Conference on Undergraduate Medical Education in OTL-HNS at the McGill Medical Simulation Center. The theme for this meeting was web based and simulation based for medical students. The conference was attended by Canadian medical schools and guest speakers included Drs. Joyceering, Beth-Ann Cummings, and Farhan Bhanji. The educational App Earn ENT secured a $65,000 grant for continued development.

The new undergraduate medical school curriculum came into effect with Otolaryngology-HNS being involved in teaching Fundamentals of Medicine (17 hours of lectures, small group sessions, Anatomy Lab Demonstrations), transitions to clinical practice (shadowing of OTL residents for 2wk periods, participation in Surgical Skills week at the Simulation Center) and the clerkship (rotations at McGill teaching hospital sites).

Dr. Lily Nguyen has officially stepped down as Committee Director and will be replaced by Dr. Johnathan Young.

Residency Training Program (Director: Dr. J. Manoukian)

The Department is currently in "Full approval" for the residency training program from the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada.
