2. Religious Literacy

To see an increase in promotion and visibility towards religious literacy, whether it be through demystifying common stereotypes about religions & spirituality or promoting awareness on important issues such as Islamophobia and Antisemitism

3. Increase Exposure of Resources

To increase promotion of various faith club services, both in and out of MORSL, to the McGill student community – placing particular emphasis on advocating for faith clubs as safe spaces to talk about faith

To promote different religious & spiritual accommodations on campus disconnect among faith clubs and between their student audiences was felt, much of it resulting from the effects of the pandemic.

Showing up for other faith clubs and religions

- To broaden audience and bridge gaps between faith clubs:

Hillel representatives noted that by reaching out to other Jewish groups on campus, it helps bridge this gap between each faith club – and further, helps clubs to reach a broader audience than simply their current student body

The Jewish Law Students group also made similar comments about meeting with other groups especially given how specialized they are.

Conclusion

MFN attendees expressed their satisfaction with this year's Multi-Faith Night. Attendees were happy to have more opportunities like these to reconnect with their interfaith community, and express both interest in giving as well as receiving community support. The theme of interfaith engagement was particularly prominent during discussions this year – both in relation to discussion about the Discover Spiritual McGill Fair and more generally as well – thus indicating the importance of emphasizing interfaith connection & outreach within MORSL's individual as well as collaborative programs going forward.
